Tri-Kap To Celebrate Its Sesquicentennial In 1992!

Kappa Kappa Kappa will be 150 years old in 1992! Plans are already being formulated to properly recognize this most significant anniversary in our fraternity’s proud history at Dartmouth. We hope to involve many members spanning a wide spectrum of classes in the planning, preparation, and celebration activities. This is our first call to every one of you to become involved in the celebration of Tri-Kap’s sesquicentennial anniversary.

As part of our centennial observance we are planning to publish an updated directory of our membership. This directory will include biographical information, listings of all members, and a geographical locator to encourage additional contact as alumni travel. We will also include a history of the society. Several mailings will be sent to alumni to gather this data, and we encourage you to think about what Tri-Kap was like when you were an undergraduate. Start thinking about what you might be able to contribute, and be on the lookout for old pictures and memorabilia.

The highlight of the sesquicentennial year will be a gathering of undergraduates and alumni for what we hope will be the biggest reunion in our history. In our initial discussions about the event, we have not yet come to a specific conclusion on either the exact date or the location for the reunion. To help in the planning, we are enclosing a brief questionnaire with this mailing. We encourage you to take a few moments to give us your ideas on what location you would prefer and indicate if you would like to join in the planning of 150th activities.

This is just a first look at what is planned. The initial committee listed below is composed of younger alumni living in the New York area. However, we need many, many more alumni to join in the planning and the promotion of the event. We need brothers from every decade to become involved—your geographical location doesn’t matter since much of the promotion will be done by mail and telephone. Please take just a moment to return the questionnaire and let us know if you can help. We’ll have additional information on our progress in upcoming issues of The Tri-Kap.

Tri-Kaps Continue To Face Challenges In The System

The past few terms have been challenging ones to members of the Dartmouth coed/fraternity/sorority (CFS) community, particularly Tri-Kap. Two of the most difficult issues facing the houses are the financial and emotional difficulties placed on them by the college’s “delayed rush” and the changes in the CFS social situation, which were created by the new alcohol policy. Both of these issues are addressed in articles in this newsletter.

With the end of the spring comes commencement and the passing of our ’91 brothers into the alumni ranks. Though they will be missed, their contributions to Tri-Kap will outlast the undergraduate careers of any of the present brothers—and, we are sure, will continue in the future. Tri-Kap’s alumni brothers are its greatest asset, and, as undergraduates, we cannot thank them enough for the contributions they have made to the society.

On another note, Tri-Kap is reclaiming its status as the leader among CFS organizations. Todd Swenson ’92 is serving as the official spokesman for the Interfraternity Council (IFC) and was the leader in drafting a CFS proposal for a new alcohol policy—unfortu-

The Alcohol Policy And Other News

The college administration is bringing about changes in the fraternity system once again. The most recent changes have been caused by the new alcohol policy, released in the spring. Although the college solicited student input through the formation of the Task Force of the College Committee on Alcohol and Other Drugs, the college ignored most of the recommendations of this group in making its recommendation to Dean Shanahan. Shanahan made his final decision on the alcohol policy only one month before his departure for Choate, which left some doubt of how committed Dean Shanahan really is to the good of the college.

Party monitoring and management are a priority in the new policy, which includes the abolition of all “common source” alcohol (e.g., kegs and punch). The enforcement portion of the alcohol policy was also changed. Dartmouth College safety and security officers are now required to be present at registered social events. Although we still own our own house, we will be obliged to allow campus police officers into all our parties if we wish to remain under the rubric of college recognition.

In other news, we have been having a great time with our programming events. In the spring, we held a reception for Eleazar Williams, a former bureau chief in the CIA. He was on campus to lecture for a class on the CIA, and the brothers and class members enjoyed an informal chat with him. We also thoroughly enjoyed the Frost Plays, in which brother Andrew Quintans ’92 acted. He provided us with some background and inside information on the plays that gave us a unique perspective on the play. This summer Andy and Sam Robertson ’92 are continuing their involvement with drama by participating in Dartmouth’s summer repertory theater.

Although it’s been a Kappa tradition to win the Huns competition every year, we fell a little short for 1991. But brothers Kevin Pritchett ’91 and Todd Swenson ’92 organized a great performance anyway.

Finally, we volunteered the artistic services of several brothers to help out the Special Olympics organizers; we made signs that were used for the competition, and a number of brothers attended the competition itself.

Tri-Kap Faces Challenges

nately, the college did not consider the proposal when it established the new alcohol policy. Tri-Kap’s bold move in dealing with delayed rush has prompted a strong interest in the house on the part of unaffiliated undergraduates and has elicited the envy of other houses on campus.

The challenges facing us are difficult, certainly, and their resolution is no easy task. But Tri-Kap, with strong undergraduate and alumni brothers, will be able to adapt to changes and overcome problems. With the society’s sesquicentennial anniversary only 12 months away, I can truly say that “her strength shall never cease.”

MALCOLM D. CLARKE ’22 is considered the number two tennis player in the age 85 group and has won 83 national titles in the last 12 years. He plays tennis three times a week when he feels like it, but, sometimes in the summer, he’d rather work around his garden. Drop a line to this energetic guy at Sunset Farm, South Harpswell, ME 04079.

Residing at 63 Hilltop Place, New London, NH 03257, is LAWRENCE H. MARTIN ’28. He has three sons: Lawrence H. Martin Jr., Samuel A. Martin, and Robert T. Martin. The only alumnus Larry hears from is KEN GRAF ’28.

HARRY C. PHILBRICK JR. ’28 and his wife, Jean, celebrated their 10th wedding anniversary on September 27, 1990. He pens, “I manage to walk 18 holes of golf twice a week, do a little vegetable gardening in the summer, and spend some time keeping my internist, dentist, dermatologist, and nose and throat specialist solvent. My family consists of two children, two grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.” Reach Harry at 61 Almira Rd., South Yarmouth, MA 02664.

Ophthalmologist DAVID G. COGAN ’29 writes, “I’m still working six days a week at the National Institute of Health in suburban Washington, because I’ve never dared to retire. I fear retirement would jeopardize a happy home life of 57 years. My creed: Aging is still the better alternative. Well, most of the time.” Drop a line to him at 4713 Trent Court, Bethesda, MD 20815.

GILBERT W. BEEBE ’33, an epidemiologist with the National Cancer Institute, is still busy with efforts to help Soviets design studies on health effects of the Chernobyl disaster. To learn more about this, write him at 7311 Stafford Rd., Alexandria, VA 22307.

“We divide our time between Little Silver, New Jersey, and Tequesta, Florida,” announces retiree DAVID W. RUSSELL ’33. “We visit Maine for a week or so in the fall. Activities include lots of golf and some fishing.” The address for Dave in Florida is 10411 Terrapin Place, #106, Tequesta, FL 33469.

NICHOLAS P. NANOS ’34 is a retired lawyer living at 840 Ocean Dr., Juno Beach, FL 33408.

Retiree DONALD SUTHERLAND ’36 of 149 E. Side Dr., Box 239, Concord, NH 03301, reports, “Not much news as far as family goes. Son Donald ’63 is with the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Washington, DC, and son James ’66 is the country manager for Chase Manhattan in the Dominican Republic. Neither is a Tri-Kap.”
Delayed Rush And Its Impact On Tri-Kap

Delayed rush—the college’s prohibition of having freshmen in Greek houses—has impacted Tri-Kap (along with many other houses) severely. Our 1991 pledge class was approximately one-half as large as our average pledge class. Because there are only two (rather than three) earlier classes in the undergraduate membership, this reduction is especially damaging. The small pledge class and overall lower number of brothers have directly affected our financial position, resulting in difficulties in maintaining the physical plant and fewer social and programming functions. Additionally, the small size of the house and the lack of new brothers caused an overall depressed sentiment over the last year and a half, leading to the general loss of morale.

The Tri-Kap undergraduate brothers (in consultation with the alumni executive committee) considered an innovative solution to the problem of delayed rush. This idea was to hold rush for all undergraduate classes (including freshmen), in defiance of the college’s regulations. In the end, Tri-Kap decided to follow college rush policy, as you will read in the following open letter to the Dartmouth community (which was printed in the Dartmouth as an advertisement last spring). However, as explained at the end of the letter, holding rush has had a positive effect on the house.

“Due to potential financial stress and potential membership below minimum standards requirements, Tri-Kap held rush on April 11-14, 1991. All aspects of College, CFS, and IFC rush policy were followed, including all alcohol prohibitions, except that ’94s [freshmen] were invited to attend.

“Tri-Kap initially was planning to offer bids to members of all active Dartmouth classes, and gave out house notices to that effect. However, after discussion with College officials, Tri-Kap decided that it would not allow freshmen to join the organization at this time, and CFS bids were, therefore, not extended. The freshmen who were interested were informed that Tri-Kap would obey College, CFS, and IFC rules and would not extend formal bids or allow freshmen to join until permitted by College regulations.

“Some freshmen are interested in joining the organization next year but have not made a commitment to do so and have not been promised a future bid. Because Tri-Kap will not admit them, no outcomes of potential consequence to freshmen will result.

“Tri-Kap has a special interest in those freshmen who participated in rush; these men will be included in the functions of Tri-Kap (to the extent allowed by College, CFS, and IFC regulations and Tri-Kap’s bylaws) in order to ensure continued interest in the house. However, since they have not been extended CFS bids or sunk the house, they are not yet brothers of Tri-Kap. Similarly, the freshmen have not made a formal commitment to Tri-Kap and are not bound to the Tri-Kap brotherhood.

“Tri-Kap apologizes to the Dartmouth community for the confusion and concern our actions may have caused. We wish to reiterate to the College community that Tri-Kap has no interest in becoming independent from the College. We do hope that one way or another the pressure of delayed rush will be relieved and that the CFS system can contribute still more to the enhancement of the Dartmouth experience.”

Although the original goal of the rush (i.e., recruiting additional members) was not obtained, the effect on the house resulting from holding rush has been positive. Rush brought the entire brotherhood together and allowed brothers to obtain the serious interest of several dozen freshmen—most of whom we expect to rush next winter. Because Tri-Kap has not violated any college policies, we do not have to worry about punitive measures being taken against the society. In short, the effects of holding rush, though not immediate, will be beneficial in the long run.

Touchback To Tri-Kap during Dartmouth Night & Homecoming Weekend ’91

The past, the present, and the future...all important aspects of our society.

Homecoming is the very best time to welcome back the hundreds of alumni who have left us a legacy of tradition and built the history of our society. We look forward with interest to hearing your recollections of life at Tri-Kap.

Homecoming Weekend is also a chance to have you meet our current members and learn about life at 1 Webster Avenue today. Your visit also gives both alumni and current undergraduates an opportunity to plan for the future and the many challenges facing Tri-Kap at Dartmouth.

The active members have planned the following activities:

Friday, October 25

Post-bonfire — There will be an alumni reception

Saturday, October 26

1:00 p.m. — Football game, Dartmouth vs. Cornell

Postgame — Join us for a cookout!

Tri-Kaps Prepare For Minimum Standards Review

In the last few months, many renovations have been made to the house to prepare for the college’s Minimum Standards review in the fall. For this review, extensive health, safety, and fire codes must be met, as well as general regulations regarding the appearance of the house. Projects have included painting parts of the living room, getting the grandfather clock in the library fixed, overhauling the attic, finishing the replacement of the tube room cushions, and installing a new ice machine. Additional improvements to the house will be carried out in the fall.

In addition, the Tri-Kap has recently received several generous gifts from alumni brothers. New TV and VCR equipment and new stereo speakers have improved the atmosphere of the basement, while a new foosball table adorns the living room. We appreciate these gifts very much and sincerely thank their contributors.
